

Quint's Travel Agency

You walk up to this red brick building, taking notice of the fact that it seems to have an extremely large number of chimneys and that they are intermittently puffing out large clouds of greenish smoke. This makes you nervous but they are obviously open for business so you head inside.

When you enter, you see the room is surrounded by fireplaces on all the walls and a line of people is in front of each fireplace. On a table in the center of the room are a bunch of travel brochures, all with the slogan: "Quint's will take you anywhere you want to go (or at least anywhere important)". Quint, who is sitting at the table, says to you "Let me know if you see anything interesting."

